PIONEER WASHER.
E. G. BOLTER,
AGENT FOR OREGON AND WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

THIS CELEBRATED WASHING MACHINE IS now for the first time introduced to the Oregon public It is unrivalled for its simplicity, durability and the rapidity and ease of its action. Washing the dirtiest clothes perfectly clean in from five to ten minutes, with but slight labor, and lasting, with proper care, for ten years. The wear and tear of clothing in washing by this machine is vastly less than by any other known process of washing. It does its work by a reverse motion in forcing the water through the clothes.

It having a tight cover, the steam thus assists materially in cleansing the clothes, and also avoids the inhaling of steam from hot suds.

This Machine captured the Special Premium at the California State Fair, and all that have used it pronounce it an invaluable adjunct to old housekeepers and families and washing men and washing women.

It has been extensively introduced throughout the State of California, and receives the universal commendation of all who have used it.

THE COUNTY RIGHTS, now unsold, will be sold at a bargain if applied for soon.

For Reference, enquire at the Mansion House, and of John Wilson,
Southworth's Boarding House, Mrs. S. F Johnson.

D. 1867 (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, sheets of music, etc.,) and patterns and samples of merchandise (including seeds and grain) shall be transmitted by either office at such charges, not less than three pence in the United Kingdom, or six cents in the United States, per four ounces on books, packets and patterns, or samples of merchandise, and under such regulations as the dispatching office may from time to time lay down; and

WHEREAS, The provisions of the said article are to be carried into effect in each country on the 1st of October, A. D. 1867.

It is hereby ordered, That at the rates of postage to be levied and collected in the United States on and after the first day of October, 1867, upon international newspapers, printed matter and other postal packets, enumerated in the said article, passed in the United States and addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, shall be as follows, viz:

Newspapers and unsealed circulars, two cents each.

Pamphlets and periodicals over two ounces in weight, and other printed matter (except books) including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c., four cents per four ounces, or fraction of four ounces.

Books, six cents per four ounces, or fraction of four ounces.

Patterns and samples of merchandise, eight cents per four ounces, or fraction of four ounces.

And be it further enacted, That the regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to the printed papers of all kinds and other postal packets enumerated in the said article shall be the following, viz:

1. The postage charges herein established must in all cases be fully prepaid at the office of mailing in the United States, by means of United States postage stamps affixed outside the package or its cover. If not so prepaid, the package cannot be forwarded.

2. Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books, or other printed papers, including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c., must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the enclosure being removed for examination.

3. No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, (other than book packets) may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it, or, in case of newspapers or other publications, when sent direct to subscribers from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing other inclosure.

No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed, but entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

5. No book packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

6. Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter or communication in the nature of a letter written in or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail, and it is the duty of the Postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book packets, patterns, samples or other postal packets posted at or passing through their offices.

7. Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value, which rule excludes from the mail articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own, apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample, or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could be fairly considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

8. No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length, or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight.

9. Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the address of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

10. There must be no inclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars which are allowed to be furnished under the preceding resolution must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached upon patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

11. Patterns or samples must be sent in covers, open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

12. Patterns, samples, or other packets, containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail bags, or the person of any officer of the post-office, are positively excluded from the mail.

13. The laws and regulations of this Department, which exclude obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints or other publications of a vulgar and indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to the United Kingdom or other foreign country.

14. Letters, newspapers, pamphlets, periodicals or books, posted in the United States and addressed to the United Kingdom may be registered at the office of mailing upon payment of a registration fee of eight cents, in addition to the ordinary postage charges, both of which must be prepaid. But the reduced registration fee of eight cents on letters will not take effect until the first of January, 1868.

15. Newspapers or other kinds of printed matter, book packets, patterns and samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of distribution in the United States.

Article 5, of the aforesaid Convention, also prescribes the following specific regulations to be observed and enforced in each country, viz:

Neither office shall be bound to deliver printed papers, the importation of which may be prohibited by the laws or regulations of the country to which they may be transmitted.

So long as any customs duty is chargeable in the United States on the importation from the United Kingdom of any of the articles enumerated above, such customs duty shall be leviable in the United States, and the proceeds shall accrue to the United States Treasury.

Except as above, no charges whatever shall be levied in the country in which international newspapers, book packets, and patterns or samples of merchandise are delivered.

Postmasters are instructed to levy and collect in advance, and after the 1st of October, 1867, the rates of postage as fixed by this order on different kinds of printed matter and other postal packets herein enumerated, observing strictly the

TUESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 8, 1867.

Impeachment.

There cannot be a doubt that the feeling in favor of the impeachment of acting President Johnson has been intensifying, gaining ground and gathering power since the last adjournment of Congress. Men who were disposed to bear with Johnson till the end of his term, preferring to endure him as an evil, rather than resort to the extreme medicine of Constitution as a remedy,—and even men who were emphatic in their declarations against impeachment, denying both the policy and the necessity of the measure,—now pronounce unqualifiedly for it. For they perceive that Johnson intends to continue his career of usurpation, and that the Union cannot be restored until he is out of the way. That he is endeavoring to defeat the reconstruction acts is too apparent to require proof; and the spectacle is presented of an Executive, whose only duty is to enforce the laws as he finds them, making himself a judge of their expediency and constitutionality, pronouncing an adverse decision in the case and then refusing on this ground to carry out the declared will of the law-making power. His policy is the same as that of the monarch who was accustomed to say "I am the state." On the Johnson theory that department of the Government which has heretofore been the leading branch is entirely superfluous. For, if the Executive can insist on his right to have a "policy" and to carry it out in a matter of supreme importance like this,—if it is to be held that the right belongs solely to him to settle the most momentous questions that ever engaged the attention of the country, and to settle them on his theory, denying the right of any other department of the Government or of the people themselves to interfere with his work,—then we may as well abolish the mere forms of constitutional government to which we have heretofore paid foolish homage, and make A. Johnson a king in name as he "policy" makes him in fact.

If a usurpation by the Executive of powers which belong to the Legislature and which have been affirmed to that branch of the Government by the decisions of the Judiciary, be a ground of impeachment, Johnson deserves to be impeached. His action in regard to the reorganization of the rebel States and their restoration to the Union has been so plainly an exercise of power which he has only to Congress, that he has not a defender of any note or eminence in any political party. If a corrupt use of the pardoning power and an attempt by this means to defeat the ends of justice and aggrandize himself, be a ground of impeachment, Johnson deserves to be impeached. If a deliberate and continued attempt to nullify the laws and prevent their execution be a ground of impeachment, he deserves to be impeached. He has denounced Congress as an unlawful body. He has denied its authority and gone to the extent of urging violent and revolutionary action against it. He has openly used his influence and advice to induce the rebels first to oppose and reject the terms which were offered in the constitutional amendment, and next to resist the act of Congress known as the military bill, and defeat the results which were sought to be gained by it. His career as President has been one of shameful misconduct, of gross abuse of power of outrageous and dangerous usurpation. When he began to stump States governments in the South, the act was viewed with general alarm; but he assured the country that it was only an "experiment" for the time, and that Congress could take such action as it should deem best for the safety and pacification of the country. But he immediately advanced from this position to a total denial of the power of Congress over these questions, and from that time to the present his wrong-doing has been incessantly growing more and more flagrant. He is now, as he has been for the past two years, the enemy to peace and reunion, and if he is not impeached and ignominiously expelled from office within three months from this time, it will be owing entirely to the forbearance of Congress and not to his deservings.

A Home Market.

The people of Oregon have always been largely devoted to agriculture, and have frequently felt the need of a market for their products. Wheat, the staple product, has often been so flat as to bring no remuneration whatever to the farmer; and in those localities throughout the State which are distant from water transportation, the price which it now commands will not pay for the labor expended in raising it. Contrary to everybody's expectations, there is a demand for wheat for export at this time, and this circumstance gives those farmers who are not too distant from ship navigation a price for their wheat which yields them a fair return. But those who are situated further from navigation are still in want of a market. In the absence of cheap methods of transportation, which are not likely to be secured for years to come, there is the greater need of a home market for our agricultural products. This can only be secured by a diversification of industry and the building up of the system which prevails in other States. We do not want fewer agriculturists, but an increased force in other pursuits. These latter classes would consume agricultural products and thus furnish those who live by the soil with a home market. In the Eastern States this system has been built up, and the various classes thus contribute to each other's support and to the prosperity and enrichment of the country. If we manufactured our own goods and wares, so far as the materials are obtainable here for their manufacture,—and Oregon is not poor in this respect, the industrial establishments that would grow up in every county would form centres of business and trade to which the agricultural products of the adjoining regions would naturally be drawn and consumed. The only way to assure a profitable market at all times to the agriculturist, is to build up the industry of the country on this plan. Then though foreign markets might fail, the local market would not. This system of home reciprocity is the life of a State. In this our State has always been wanting. But we must grow gradually into this system. It will take time to establish it, and all that can be done now toward this as toward other plans for building up the prosperity of the State is to point out the way. Dreams of growth are faster than growth; but he is not a true pioneer who, for this reason, would despair.

There a few persons who are dissatisfied with all existing political organizations, and who talk of establishing a "conservative" party. In quiet times, rippled by only a comparatively small number of agitators, Conservatism is easy and fashionable. But in a period like the present, when men are terribly in earnest, when the foundations of the great deep are broken up, when life under its old conditions is wrenched from its moorings and adrift on the sea, requiring bold and skillful pilotage, there are not Conservatives enough of any genuine sort, to make much ado about. They are not numerous enough to revive old traditions and overmatch fresh impulses, and they must therefore choose their association with one of the existing, vitally energetic parties. The day of Conservatism, so-called, may come sometime; but not yet. The transition period must and before the succeeding era of quiescency can begin.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—Bernard Block, formerly agent of the firm of Greenhood & Newbanner, at Weaverville, was arrested on a charge of embezzlement of funds received by him in the course of his business as such agent. The particulars of the amount etc., are not yet made public, and it is probable that other charges will be preferred against him.

The Pacific Mail Steamship Company's new steamship China will be opened to the public on Sunday and Monday.

Catherine Gorman was sent to Stockton to-day. She became insane from excessive joy at meeting her brother, for whom she had sent to her native land, and who arrived by the last steamer.

Hay Hata Koe, the principal performer of the Japanese troup at the Metropolitan Theatre, refused to play this afternoon and the management were compelled to disappoint the large audience which had assembled.

A telegram reports that the mills, warehouse and wharf of Benecia Comcast Company were burned down last night. Loss on the works is calculated at $10,000. Loss on stock about $30,000. The insurance is $35,000. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary. We are informed that the company will at once rebuild the works on a much larger scale, so as to be enabled to manufacture cement in quantities to supply the entire demand of the Pacific coast. They have ample supply of stone ready for milling with which they hope to commence again within six weeks or two months from date.

Dr. Selfridge, of Oakland, was run over by a hack on the corner of California and Sansome streets. He was severely but not seriously hurt.

The safe of Wells, Fargo & Co., at San Juan, Monterey county, was broken open and robbed of $1,700, last Sunday night.

It is apprehended that serious riots may occur before the suppression of the squatters, who are now making so much trouble, is effected on the disputed tract of land included principally within the limits of Harrison street, on the East Mission, at west 23d street north and the base of Bernal Heights south. About forty shanties have been erected, and more are in course of construction. These are defended by bands of armed men, among whom there is evidently concert of action.

Mining stocks closed very weak to-day. The stock circulars states that the present indications of a continuous large yield of the various and extensively developed claims on the Comstock lode, at least for some months to come are a test promising as formerly.

At the Ocean House track to-day there was a trotting match five miles out, for a purse of $500. Matches—Joe Allen, Lowry Matthews, Dick Gough and Lady Dun; won by Joe Allen, stallion, in 12:56. This horse sold in the pools last night at $5 against $150.

Shipping.

The steamship America from San Juan this morning. Carried 221,000 pounds of wool in transit to New York. The ship Panorama for New York has engaged all the wheat she can carry, upwards of 550 tons. The Robbin-Hood for the same port also had a similar amount of wheat engaged, both vessels will also carry considerable quantities of wool and hides.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct 7.—A sail boat with three men in it upset in the Bay yesterday and one of the party was drowned. The others clung to the boat and was rescued by the steamer Washoe. Fifol was the name of the man drowned.

On Saturday night the steward of the ship Regina Ultra was drowned while attempting to get aboard that vessel at India Dock. It is supposed he was intoxicated at the time.

Yesterday some small boys went into an alley near Larken Street Church, and one of them armed with a shot gun, proposed to another that he should hold up his head and allow him to fire at it. He did so, and the boy fired, hitting his hand and inflicting painful wounds.

Yesterday morning Thos. Burns and Geo. Haskell got into a quarrel and fought. While the scuffle was going on, Michael Walsh, pantryman on board the steamer Colorado, separated them. As soon as they were apart, Burns drew a derringer pistol from his pocket, and shooting it at Walsh's head, fired. The bullet struck him in the left breast near the nipple, passed directly through the left lung and lodged, it was thought, in the muscular integuments of the back. There is scarcely a possibility that he will recover.

The first section of the great sea wall has been extended north from Vallejo street about 18C feet, and the work is being rapidly pushed forward. About seventy men are now employed on the work with twenty teams. With this force, about 900 cubic feet of rock are placed in the embankment daily.

No announcement as to who would occupy his place in the circuit of this District; but it is expected that Judge Hoffman will do so until February, when Judge Deady of Oregon will again return to San Francisco.

The St. Louis Democrat in an article on impeachment says: "An attempt has been made to muzzle a President by laws of questionable efficiency and constitutionality, instead of adopting the plain constitutional remedy. The Constitution never intended that a dangerous Executive be stripped of power by law; it intended that he should be impeached."

The Constitution of that super excellent Democratic Government once known as the Confederate States of America required foreigners to be twenty-five years in the country before they could become citizens. This is a very strong proof of the love of the Democracy for foreigners.

The nomination of Grant for the Presidency next year will produce about the same effect among the Copperheads as the throwing of a shovelful of hot embers into a nest of snakes. There will be a wonderful squirming, wriggling and hissing.

The Democratic majority in Montana is 1,109. In the last election for delegate, the Democratic majority was 1,366. The vote in the late election was much larger than ever before.

The latest and most absurd story is to the effect that John Wilkes Booth is now Captain of a pirate vessel and the terror of the China seas.

STATE ITEMS.

Wheat is quoted at 60 cents at Albany.

The Eugene Journal says Dr Stacy Hemenway left here last Monday with his family, bound for Washington Territory, to report for duty, having received an appointment in the United States service.

The Albany Democrat of the 5th has the following: The race between "Red Jacket" backed by Wm Gild and "Pinck," backed by Johnson, came off at the race course on the East ground yesterday afternoon—"Red Jacket" winning the race—single dash of a mile—in 1 48. The wager was $500 a side.

A Eugene paper of the 5th inst., says Mr. Wm H Odell, U S Deputy who undertook the contract of surveying the Eastern Oulde Meridian, was heard from this morning. Ten days ago he was on Jordan creek. There is a force of 25 soldiers with him. He expects to finish his work in time to reach home in about twenty days.

The Albany Democrat says: Raymond S Burkhart, Esq., of this county, one of its first settlers, and a full handed farmer, having recently returned from a trip across the Cascade mountains, is so smitten with Ochoco valley, that he, together with sundry other good citizens, will soon take up their line of march and go thither, taking with them provisions, and everything necessary for a season there during the coming winter. They intend making and improving claims under the homestead law, for the benefit of their boys. Mr Burkhart, whom we deem an eminently practical man, is quite sanguine as regards the richness of the soil, and the desirableness of the climate.

John Minto informs the Record that he has it from reliable information that one hundred thousand sheep have passed through Umpqua, bound for California the past summer. The keeper of the Canyon toll gate says 80,000 have passed over the Canyon road, and he estimates that at least 20,000 have gone over the mountains. This statement is corroborated by the South Umpqua Ferryman, who says that 100,000 have passed there. Many have passed over the Cascade mountains at Eugene City, 20,000 have crossed on the Barlow road, and a great number have gone up and across the Columbia. The best of it is Oregon has received payment in gold for them all.

Cornelius was lively last week. The Gazette says: An Ethiopian organ-grinder (minus the monkey) and tambourine girl were in town on Friday, grinding music and beating to the infinite delight of a troop of bare-footed, bare-headed urchins. On Saturday the Democrats had a grand rally. Messrs. Hayden, Upton, Helm, Thayer, Barnett, Strahan and others were present and addressed the meeting. In consequence of a press of job work and the absence of one of our printers, we could not be present. In the evening a rambling mule lecturer, with an Afrikan wife, held forth at the College, to a very "calm" audience. His "theme" was music, and "object," if we rightly understood it, to get money without "manual labor." Guess he did not succeed muchly in Cornelius. Our people don't like to give something for nothing.

HORSE STOLEN.—The Boise Statesman of the 4th says:

On Thursday night a lot of clothing was taken from the house of Capt. McKay, down the valley four or five miles, while the men were sleeping out in the hay-yard. The next night a valuable horse, with bridle and saddle, belonging to Mr. Flowers, was taken from the same ranch. A man named Ike Tubbs had been staying there two or three days, but left on Monday morning, and as he is the only one who knew where to put his hands on the clothing lost, he is accused of both thefts. Capt. McKay and Mr. Johnson went in pursuit of him Saturday morning. Tubbs was sentenced to serve a term in the Oregon penitentiary about 8 years ago for killing a man in Jackson county. He escaped somehow before his time was out, and has been living in this valley during the last three or four years. Sheriff Duval has a warrant for his arrest for theft committed at Rocky Bar two or three weeks ago.

The State Journal refers as follows to a matter which has a connection with the recent contest for the office of Marshal in this city:

Some twenty-five years ago there was a Spelling Book in use which contained a line of reading matter for small boys to practice upon, that read: In France divorces had been granted "for in-com-pat-i-bil-i-ty of temper." This, doubtless, is the source from whence Brown's profound knowledge in regard to the legal significance of the word incompatibility is derived; knowing himself justified by such authority, he boldly reads a lecture to Judge Shattuck and the Supreme Court.

CODDS AND COLDS ARE OFTEN CONTRACTED.—A continuance for any length of time causes irritation of the Lungs or some chronic Throat Disease. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are offered with the fullest confidence in their efficacy, giving almost invariably cure and immediate relief.

M. Duttell, President. C. W. Moore, Cashier. Collections of Notes and Accounts on the principal places in Idaho Territory promptly attended to. GOSSIP ABOUT THE RAILROAD.—We find in the Sacramento Union, the following "railroad talk," in which the writer presents a view of the various schemes on foot from a St. Helens stand-point. Nobody here will have any objection to the St. Helens people having as many "pretensions" as they like; "pretensions will not build much of a railroad nor affect very seriously the question of terminus." "After from comes the railroad. Perhaps I ought not to give the impression that the railroad is a secondary excitement—railroads generally being considered as first class subjects of interest. In Oregon, however, things often appear in an order which would seem inverted to people nearer the Orient. The railroad is something of which many good Oregonians are slightly afraid, on the principle that innovations are dangerous. It is whispered among the knowing ones that many intelligent Portlanders are opposed to innovation. When there was nothing in this upper country but the valley of the Willamette, Portland, Oregon, became of necessity a considerable commercial entrepot, being at the foot of the valley as nearly as the river would allow, and everything centered at that point, even ocean navigation. But now there are the Columbia, the Cowlitz, the Lewis and the Lake rivers, and the upper country (that is, Montana, Idaho and Eastern Oregon), all drawing by their increased population and great importance away from the metropolis of the Willamette. Events point out the early location of a city more accessible to these several regions and nearer to the sea. This would probably happen, even if we depended solely on steamboats for transportation, as we do now; but it has suggested itself to the enemies of innovation that a railroad from any given point in California to terminate in Oregon would inevitably seek the Columbia river, as the natural great highway for this whole country. That would ruin the prospects of Portland for becoming the rival of San Francisco, and therefore there is a steady though concealed opposition to railroads among the wise Portlanders. Any one who reads the Journals of that city may soon convince himself which way the cat jumps—or there has never appeared in either of them an article which could be considered as a hearty indorsement of the railroad interest, nor one which was intended to encourage or enlighten the people on this subject, during the whole period it has been [illegible] discussion, if we except one or two contributed articles, for which, of course, the editorial management are not responsible nor answerable to their masters. The quarrel now is, or pretends to be, about the routes—whether the east or west side of the river is to be preferred; and the road is to connect Eugene City and Portland. This would leave the Portland Transportation Company, on the Willamette river, out in the cold, but would not affect the Oregon Steam Navigation Company, except favorably. They would still have all the carrying to San Francisco and Portland would remain their headquarters. It is rather a subject of congratulation that the road or roads are not to be built with Oregon capital; for, even if they were willing to put money in public enterprises, with the influences working at the present day, only a petty local interest would be considered. When good engineers have located a line of road, it is found that the interests of the State and of the people have been consulted, and it will begin and end somewhere, as it should. As to the merits of the eastern or western side of the Willamette, it amounts to just this: On the eastern side are Oregon City, Salem and Albany—river towns of considerable importance and two of the best counties in the State—Marion and Linn. On the western side is Portland, Corvallis and Eugene, which, taken together, scarcely overbalance the eastern towns, and several counties under pretty good cultivation. I do not fancy that there can be much difference in the resources of the two sections. But when we are considering a straight line road to terminate at the Columbia river, whether it comes down one side or the other, it cannot reach the Columbia any great distance from St. Helens. It must also seek a crossing, in view of the Puget Sound or the Northern Pacific road, and a good crossing cannot be obtained above the mouth of the Willamette. Neither can one be found below the mouth until we get below Sauvie's Island, and just there is St. Helens, in the center of a beautiful country, and with a good harbor in Summer and Winter. Why not, then, ask we of St. Helens, why not we have pretensions?

THE DAY OF ATONEMENT.—To-morrow our Hebrew citizens will celebrate their most solemn festival, the Yomkippur (Day of Covering, or seeking Protection.) It is the last day of the Ten Days of Penitence, initiated by the "Days of Memorial," or of Teruah (of rousing the soul from its slumber, to a spiritual revival) commonly called the New Year. The deeper import of the Hebrew name for the festival will appear from the translation given above; it is a day which, if attended with [illegible] (Theshuvah, will cover, protect the penitent through the mercy of God. The English name is derived from the obsolete English verb to be at one, to be reconciled, to hearten up.

According to Jewish Theology the reconciliation between the [illegible] and God is effected without any mediation [illegible] and [illegible]-atonement on the part of the sinner and [illegible] the mere mercy of God, as a merciful father is ready [illegible] to his penitent child, or a master to his penitent servant. This belief they support by the [illegible] of the natural law (of a father and son, and [illegible] and servant, just illustrated) impressed in the heart which does not assent to the sacrifice of the [illegible] for the guilty to appease an angry deity (!) and [illegible] original verses like: "I delight in mercy, and not in sacrifice." Hosea 6:6, and Psalms 40:7,8, and similar [illegible].

The whole day is spent in worship; and in truly devout congregations worship continues uninterrupted through the whole of the twenty-four hours, from sun to sun; and the Days of Penitence are an actual realization of those terms: they are actual Days of Revival, extended by the three conditions of penitence required by their [illegible] Acts, viz: Amendment, Devotion and Acts of Charity. These acts are attended with a strict fast from sun to sun on the Holyday, and for the people also make that fast already a [illegible] of reconciliation and [illegible] against fasting without actual amendment.

E.

INDIAN AFFAIRS AT FORT KLAMATH.—Supt. Huntington was in town yesterday on his way to Warm Springs Reservation and Fort Klamath by way of Crooked River. The Indians at both these places are reported peaceable, and a large part of the able bodied men from the former reservation have been for about two years, in the service of Uncle Sam under Gen. Steele. A few of those belonging at Klamath have joined with the hostile Modocs and lost their hair thereby, but the most of them are scared in a reservation near the Fort and are peaceable. Mr. Huntington thinks the Snakes are very much diminished in numbers, and pretty thoroughly deprived of ammunition and food, and that their power for mischief is much abridged. They will doubtless, in a year or two more, be rendered completely inoffensive. The military have about forty Snake prisoners now on hand, and arrangements have been made to turn them over to the Indian Department. A large amount of Indian goods have recently been shipped from New York to Portland and will soon be distributed among the tribes at the several [illegible]. Mr. Huntington's present journey is partially with reference to this object. Mr. H. says that the route from Dalles to Klamath Lake, and thence to Pitt river in California, is the best natural road of its length, he has ever seen. The country is also North, mostly level and unobstructed by large streams, and supplied with abundant water and grass. There is a large amount of habitable country interspersed among the sage brush and alkali, which are the chief features of the country. The distance from Dalles to Fort Klamath is about two hundred and seventy-five miles.

COUNTY COURT.—MARQUAM, JUDGE.—The October term of the County Court opened yesterday morning and the following business was transacted:

In the matter of the estate of Wm. A. Ebinger, John McCracken, executor, final account filed; order issued for the publication of notice of final settlement and final hearing set for Nov. 7th.

Estate of A. H. White, late deceased; R. A. White appointed administrator; W. S. Caldwell, John Sunderland and Phillip Cohen appointed appraisers.

Thos. Smith was appointed guardian of Frank and Ida Koblitz, minors and lignt[illegible].

In the matter of the estate of Jos. Koblitz, A. Hurgren executor; final account filed and final settlement set for hearing Dec. 2d; Ed. Barstow appointed guardian ad litem, for minor heirs.

Jos. Daly vs. Bennett & White; civil action; set for trial Thursday, 10th inst.

SILVER BRICKS.—Mr. I. M. Johnson, a resident of Benton County, arrived down from Idaho on Saturday, and yesterday exhibited to us several very healthy looking silver bricks, made at the "Greenback" mill in the Yuba district. The rock from which it was crushed was from the Atlanta ledge and yielded about $500 per ton. The bricks shown us were the yield of a run, of which, it is estimated, only sixty per cent of the metal was saved. The tailings, not worked, are estimated to be worth something over $300, per ton of the rock crushed. The Greenback mill is the only one in the Yuba district which has been running the past summer, and that has now stopped. The location of the Atlanta ledge is about sixty miles northeast of Idaho city. The silver is very fine and contains a small per cent of gold. The owners have certainly got a good thing.

EXPLOSION.—Mr. Daniel Bigley of the Excelsior Soda Works had a narrow escape from injury by the bursting of a soda bottle, yesterday. He was filling a bottle by means of his patent machine and was just in the act of forcing down a cork, when the bottle bursted into pieces which flew with great violence in every direction. One piece cut a hole in a glove on his hand and another cut his pants just at the thigh. Fortunately, however, he escaped unhurt, but he says he was "terribly scared." The explosion was so loud almost as the report of a pistol. Some months ago, the same thing occurred to Mr. Bigley, when he was also fortunate, receiving a deep and severe wound in the wrist which eventually cost him the use of two fingers. So it seems that the bottling of even a Good Templar's drink, has its dangers.

SCARCITY OF LUMBER.—Building in this city has been for some time impeded by the scarcity of lumber. We know of some buildings which have been delayed a good many days in this way. Lumber could not be had to keep them going. The city is using all the lumber made here and large quantities from St. Helens, Oak Point and other places on the Columbia river. We are not informed as to whether the mills down the river are running to their utmost capacity; but it is supposable that they are. The mills here are more than three weeks behind with their orders. Some of the street work is lagging because of it, as far lumber cannot be filled as fast as wanted. This fact indicates something of the extent of building now going on. The city is really growing with healthy rapidity, the croakers to the contrary notwithstanding.

JACKSON COUNTY MARBLE.—We received, yesterday, specimens of marble from the quarry of Jackson county. It is a very clear, quartz-like stone, full of glistening, fine crystals, and almost as hard as flint. It is said to take a very high polish and to be very handsome when finished. We took one of the specimens to the shop of Mr. Wm. Young, and he compared it with the Lindon River marble, which it is very much like, except that it is whiter. Mr. Young says it is too hard for anything but plain slabs and building stoops. For table tops or anything of that kind, it would be both beautiful and rich, as when polished, every crystal is brought out in clear relief.

TREASURE RECEIVED.—On Saturday evening, Wells, Fargo & Co., received treasure from the Upper country to the amount of $30,000.

AN INTELLIGENT SAN FRANCISCAN.—The Record says: "When Mr. Cross went to San Francisco lately, an Oregon merchant introduced him to a commission house there with a view of establishing a regular business as a dealer in Oregon meats. The commission merchant very anxiously inquired if the State of Oregon could furnish meats enough to stock him and supply his trade. Now one worthy townsman thinks the idea is to be viewed on some considerable capacity, and he longes yet when he tells how one commission house wanted to know if all Oregon could furnish him with beef and pork."

GOING TO ALASKA.—The Victoria Colonist sent a "special correspondent" to Alaska by the steamer John L. Stephens. It also mentions the fact that the steamer had on board special correspondents of the New York Herald and the San Francisco Bulletin. Among the passengers were Rev. J. G. Hayne, Chaplain U. S. A., lately stationed at Fort Steilacoom, and his wife; Col Weeks, U. S. A., and wife, "Mr. McCrea, candidate for Delegate to Congress" and quite a number of other adventurers.

A SMASH UP.—One of Mr Cook's livery teams which a gentleman with a lady, was driving out yesterday, got away from the driver and ran till the carriage was smashed up pretty badly. One of the horses was considerably bruised and cut. There must be a deal of very bad management of teams, lately, or there could scarcely be a runaway every day in the week.

GOING TO THE FAIR.—A large number of our people have gone, or are going, to the State Fair. Several of our regular "institutions" are either suspended for the time being, or being run by proxy. A much greater number of Portland people would have visited the fair had the weather been more favorable.

"THE GAME" AT SALEM.—Several of the Pioneers went up to Salem on Monday and the rest of them will go today. To-morrow, they play a game with the Willamette Club of Salem at 1 on Thursday, with the Clackamas Club. There are other games to be played, but we are not posted as to the times when.

WILLAMETTE FREIGHTS.—Arrived per steamer Alert from Oregon City, yesterday, 1,492 qr sks flour, 200 sks oats, 263 bags wheat, 41 hlf bbls dried fruit, 25 gunnies bacon, 15 boxes eggs, 8 bales woolen goods and 143 boxes of apples.

MEETING AT THE SYNAGOGUE.—We are requested to say that the Israelites of this city are earnestly requested to assemble at Beth Israel at 10 o'clock A. M. to-day. The object of the meeting will be stated to the congregation.

AT HALF-MAST.—The flag of the Washington Guard was at half-mast yesterday in respect to the memory of John Rae, one of the members of the company, who died the day before. His funeral will take place to-day.

FOR MONTICELLO.—The Ranger will leave Vaughn's wharf at 8 o'clock to-morrow morning, for Monticello and intermediate landings.

GONE HOME.—Judge McBride of Idaho, started upon his return to Boise City yesterday morning.

PORTLANDERS GOING TO THE STATE FAIR should buy a suit of suitable clothes of Barman Bros., at corner of Morrison and Front streets; or if they forget to do so, they should go to Barman Bros.' store at Salem and purchase a suit. Barman Bros. don't care which of their stores you go to for clothing.

AUCTION AND COMMISSION HOUSE.—Falk and Kraemer have opened an auction and commission house on the corner of Front and Washington streets, where they propose to have regular auction sales of groceries, dry goods, furniture, real estate, etc.—Oscar Kilborn, Auctioneer. Consult their advertisement under the head of "New To-Day."

IGNORANCE AND RABIDNESS in ancient times often caused man to challenge each other, but in these days, where people are more enlightened and jealousy is not such a vice as in centuries past, a challenge is not considered gentlemanly and therefore not accepted. The public will be amply rewarded by calling at the store of Rubin & Mabel, No. 91 Front street, where, without the least shadow of doubt, the best clothing is to be found, and price no object.

ATHENIAN ATHLETICS.—Meet on your grounds for practice and special meeting this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Don't fail to be prompt.

DR HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.—The operation of this palatable remedy upon the stomach, liver and excretory organs is singularly soothing and conservative. It regulates, recruits and purifies them. Dyspepsia in all its forms yields to its control and invigorating properties, and it is recommended to mothers, enfeebled by the cares and duties of maternity, as the safest and best tonic they can probably use. In all the crisis of female life it will be found eminently useful, and elderly persons will derive much more benefit from it than from ordinary stimulants.—Sold by all Druggists and dealers everywhere.

☞ We have but little confidence in the trumpet tongued statements of the proprietors of advertised medicines generally, but we are forced to concur in the opinion, uniformly expressed by all who have used PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER, that it is a very valuable article, and one that it would be well for every household to have at hand, in case of bruises, scalds, burns, diarrhœa, dysentery, cholera, fever and ague, and the host of diseases, external and internal, which it is adapted to cure or alleviate. No article of medicine ever attained to such unbounded popularity and extensive diffusion. It has penetrated to every part, even the most remote, of the known world, bearing with it its healing influences more potent than those of the spices of "Araby the blest." We are informed by our principal druggists, that they sell more of this article for exportation than any or all others, and that the demand is constantly increasing.—Salem Observer.

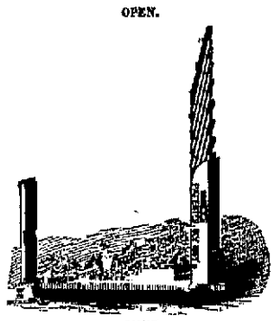
LEE'S
AMERICAN VERTICAL PICKET FARM & CARRIAGE GATE!
PATENTED JULY 11TH, 1865.
OPEN.


SHUT.
THIS GATE WILL BE ON EXHIBITION AT THE STATE FAIR!
When the Rights to the Counties of MARION, POLK, LINN, LANE, BENTON, JACKSON, JOSEPHINE, DOUGLAS, UMPQUA, COOS and CURRY will be offered for sale by my Agent.
The advantages of this gate may be summed up in this brief statement:
1st—being on a perfect balance and resting on a castor near the base, and between two posts, as may be seen in the diagram, there is no tendency to unhang the posts from a perpendicular; it thus avoids the inconvenience so often experienced with the swing gate, that of dragging on the ground after a frost.
2d—It opens vertically and out of the way of the snow, mud and stones, requiring no additional space when open.
3d—It admits of more secure and cheaper fastening, while it is also a stronger gate than any other of the same amount of lumber.
4th—It can be easily opened from a carriage, without halting the horse or getting out, and even the field gate, without levers, can be opened easily by any one on horseback, and without leaving a team.
5th—It is not only the most convenient gate, but can be made 50 per cent. cheaper than any other kind now in use.
ANY SMART, ENTERPRISING CARPENTER CAN MAKE FIFTEEN TO THIRTY DOLLARS PER DAY MAKING THESE GATES.

Why we left the Homestead

[From the Galaxy]

The northern lights stalked across the blue heavens like sheeted ghosts I stood at the window, seeing, with the mind's eye, not the flashing armor of the Valkyrie but simply an over grown tumble down house, over the hills and a mile away

It had been formerly been an inn, and before it still creaked a decayed sign post like a sort of swinging grave stone. It was a house with a history. The mysterious dispensations of marriage and death had been busy with its occupants till out of a joyous family of ten only three remained Fred Cunningham and his invalid mother and sister.

I had great pity for Fred, my old schoolmate, the tried friend of my mature girlhood There was a power of fascination belonging to him as a youth and as a man, which helped give him the reputation of a flirt I believe the charge was malely false, though I have sometimes defended him while suffering from a little private headache on my own account

The circumstances of his life had changed "from lively to severe" His mother was a hopeless invalid who might live for years with half her brain asleep, and had latterly become so petulant and exacting that it was nearly impossible to find a domestic who would stay in the house. As for the daughter, a cruel spinal disease so tortured her nerves that she was scarcely less unreasonable than her mother so, between those unhappy invalids, Fred Cunningham's once peaceful home was converted into a pandemonium but he met vicissitudes with fortitude, and wore as little of his heart on his sleeve as any man I knew

While I was still thinking of him with admiration and pity, he suddenly entered the parlor and stood before me I can scarcely tell why, but I know as if by intuition his errand to me So impartial were his attentions toward ladies that I had hitherto hardly suspected, much less dared hope, that he regarded me with preference; and the revelation which he stammered out this evening was really a surprise.

I replied to him without any pretence of hesitation, I was so very sure of my own heart, so sure too that affection would make it easy for me to live in that direful house he called home

The poor man was deeply moved by what he called my exceeding kindness, and said repeatedly, "God bless you, Rachel." I, for my part, was so entirely happy that I scorned the thought of having performed a benevolent deed. If Fred had proposed taking me to an Arkean jungle; I should scarcely have opposed the step, or even considered it a sacrifice.

Such love comes to some women once in the course of their lives. I had not overrated my attachment for the man who soon became my husband, indeed, despite my peculiar trials, it was my greatest fear that I should be too happy, even in pandemonium. Poor, querulous Mrs. Cunningham died suddenly, so there was only left the sick sister with her "pain twisted frame," but I must aver that after her mother's death she did all in her power to double my duties and make it impossible for me to have a moment's peace under the family roof. I was faithful if not an affectionate nurse, my great happiness made it easy for me to pity the wretched sufferer, and, moreover, I was naturally of a patient, enduring temper.

But, after the lapse of six months, I one day uttered a hasty word I shall have cause to remember it to my latest hour, for thereupon commenced the heaviest trial of my life. It was a perfect day in June I had, at Fred's suggestion invited several guests to tea, and was feeling all the anxiety of a young housekeeper to make a "richly triumphant banquet, with all kinds of genteelnesses done in sugar" Nearly exhausted, body and soul, I had not the magnanimity left to fly up stairs smiling, every five minutes, at the shrill summons of sister Angeline's bell. I made a hasty allusion to the invalid's "lack of consideration," and informed her with some warmth that she had been the means of spoiling my custards I had never forgotten myself before, and those ungrateful words cancelled the forbearance of months. Battle fires flamed in Angie's eyes I saw I had roused the sleeping dogs of war.

"Custards!" echoed she in tones cold enough to freeze them into ice creams. "Now I'll warrant it was Fred who suggested custards"

"To be sure; he likes them, you know," replied I, winding, for I was sure her words had a hidden meaning.

"And he had the arrangement of this supper and the invitations all his own way? Worse than a king, my dear, he doesn't even honor his wife with the crown matrimonial"

I crushed a spider in silence, her spite was harmless, as yet.

"Ill assorted marriages are like twisted tongs," continued my tormentor. "Did you ever get fingers pinced by a pair?"

I laughed nervously. "Unexampled glory of littleness," thought I, "so this is the way in which she seeks to revenge herself for my hasty rebuke."

I suppose my laugh irritated Angeline beyond endurance.

"Let me help you dress your hair, Rachel, dear; I feel a little family pride in your appearance; it is not pleasant for me to hear people wonder at Fred's choice"

I passively seated myself at her feet, placed my head in her lap, and quite serenely allowed her the coveted privilege of brushing my fair locks.

"Choice, did I say?" pursued she, trembling with increasing wrath, "the world knows very well that Fred did not really marry for true love!"

"Angie," said I, coolly, for really her words only amused me, "you will certainly make my head bleed if you persist in using that brush so unmercifully."

"Grace Preston was his choice, and, in justice to both the unhappy souls, I must say it was not the fault of either that they did not come together."

"Grace Preston—our Grace?" gasped I, greatly amazed, though I by no means believed one word of the story.

"Yes, dear. You profess astonishment. Is it possible you never knew of their attachment? Dr. Preston positively forbade the banns; not from any objection to my brother, but because, as he said, he could not allow his only daughter to assume the care of us two invalids—mother was living then."

"Angeline Cunningham," said I, raising my head and speaking with difficulty, "do you tell me this for truth?"

"Don't look so wild," cried my sister-in-law; and I believe she was a little frightened, and would almost have recalled her words. "It's the simple truth, Rachel! I've often wondered if you knew it, you snatched at Fred so eagerly He proposed to you the very next day after Grace dismissed him."

I rushed to the window for air. I remember how cruelly bright it was out of doors. I could not doubt Angeline's veracity. Fred had come to me with a lie on his lips. "How dared he?" I groaned. "O Fred, Fred, what have you done?"

"It was necessary, you see," said Angeline deprecatingly, "it was absolutely impossible for us to live without some woman in the house, and no domestic would stay, for in mother's paroxysms—"

"Don't! don't," I entreated

"I am sorry to wound you," said Angie, whose wrath was rapidly cooling since she perceived that her blow had struck home, doing more execution than she had intended. "Men do such things every day, Rachel!"

My sister in law was an untrained girl of eighteen, with no experience of the power of love, and very little delicate intuition regarding the feelings of others. She had really no idea what a wound she had inflicted.

"Come, now, I'll tell you the whole story, Rachel, it isn't very bad, and you mustn't blame Fred. He talked with me that evening, and asked me in a sort of desperation if I could think of any worthy young woman who would consent to marry him with his encumbrances Hard, he said, that his dearest hopes should be crushed, but one must submit to fate"

"Fate," echoed I, in a whisper, "child, go on!"

"Well, Fred," said I, 'you'll be a kind husband, I am sure, but don't choose "a dancing wife," like the children of Benjamin Marry Rachel Partridge, for she is one who would be likely to take an interest'"

"Not a word, Angeline, spare me, I entreat"

I flew to my chamber and shut out the inquisitive sun Denied even the poor consolation of believing I was my husband's chosen housekeeper I had been recommended to him by his sister! Happy wives, tell me, do you wonder I ate my heart! If I, the "worthy young woman," could only go quietly to sleep under the willows! Why, the husband who was dearer to me than life had married me to secure a housekeeper who would "feel an interest!"

And this very day, under his roof, I must entertain Grace Preston, the woman he had loved, did love still! I heard the sound of childish laughter ringing out like mirth in a sepulchre It was recess time at the schoolhouse under the hill—three o'clock I must dress for my guests "Must?" Yes, thank God for conventionalities. No time now for thought, as for tears, the fountain was sealed, and a stone lay over it.

I finished my toilette and arrayed myself bo comingly. "as well as," I said, "though it matters little, I should never care again for such trifles I must go away to morrow, back to my father's own house. To day I would carry my head proudly—it would be the last time."

There was a knock upon my door—Fred's knock He came in tired from working in the meadow

"Bravo Rachel, how well you look I am particularly glad to see you in that pink dress today

'For our guests' sake I suppose Fred'

'To be sure But Rachel, dear child, how pale you are'

'I think,' said I raising the blind, 'this is no Summer only a Winter painted green

'Yes it is so! for the season—old for the animable mouth of June,' replied my husband, absently, and then dropping off into a deep study

Angeline's words rang like chimes "Hard, he said, that his dearest hopes should be crushed, but one must submit to fate I did not pity him yet My heart had only room for its own anguish

I had always had a surface acquaintance with Grace Preston and had frequently met her since my marriage but this afternoon I saw her as if for the first time Her face beamed out from a spray of golden curls, her lips were a pair of rubies inlaid with pearls My stinging jealousy magnified her charms I could have thapsodized like a lover

My husband treated her with cordial politeness, nothing more, not a sign—for I watched every thing—betrayed their past romance. But this I noted, and I could not be mistaken—they were both unhappy I could was constrained, and avoided the danger of a tete a tete She, I fancied, could have been less scrupulous, perhaps, still her manner was sufficiently reserved

Once, and only once, I saw their 'errant eyes' meet Grace's glance was love and pity undisguised, and the hopeless agony in Fred's face smote me like a lash of consonance. I remembered next moment, however, that it was he, not I, who had raised this everlasting barrier. I had not voluntarily come between himself and Grace, it was he who had summoned me to his side by his own free will How had he dared so to perjure himself? How had she dared enter his house, knowing the pain she would inflict? They were always meeting, and I could not recollect that Grace had ever tried to shun an interview. Alas, alas, why had my fearful knowledge come too late?

I was continually lapsing into reveries like this but, thanks to my strength of will, I managed to struggle through those long hours without losing my presence of mind or betraying by the slightest sign my secret wound. I believe our guests were tolerably entertained, and carried away the impression that I at least was happy

"Very likely they approved my supper," groaned I, inwardly, "for I am not a 'dancing daughter of Shiloah' I know how to make yeast bread, nurse the sick, and me Angeline delicately expressed it, 'take an interest.'"

I put my sister in law in bed with my usual care, not omitting the light stand with matches, candle, ice water and silver bell. "Rachel," said she, querulously, "why don't you smile? You look as if you were frozen."

I kissed her for reply, and left her with a whispered good night, which would have kept her awake if she had had a heart and could have understood my smothered anguish

All that afternoon, which was as long as years, I had been maturing a plan I would sit up a few hours, so I told Fred, to finish a piece of work—head-work I meant, and he, though generally solicitous lest I should draw too largely upon my strength, offered no objection, being pre occupied with his own torturing thoughts.

I sat in the library, a cosy little room made at my suggestion out of a China closet. The pride I had taken in that room when I was happy, that is to say, up to this very morning! The door had been fashioned after some Freemason symbol to please Fred. I pushed back the curtain and let in the melancholy moonlight upon the long shelves. Many of the books had been added since I came, and we had read them together before I knew this dreadful secret—that my husband did not love me. Our literary tastes were similar. This most wretched marriage was not wholly without compensation to Fred. He had not only secured a good housekeeper, but a companionable friend, so I proudly said to myself. With all my outraged love for this man who had deceived me, I still kept up my pride; if I had been a meek woman, I think I should have died.

It was my purpose to leave his house this very night. I took from the secretary my writing desk, and lighting a lamp, commenced a letter to my husband. Words came readily enough, but they all failed to express my burning indignation, my bitter grief. I could not satisfy myself. I feared I might be still less satisfied upon reflection. I must be deliberate. I would not write the letter to night. I would put on my hat and shawl and steal away, leaving only a note with the words, "I have gone home, Fred." Then he would come to see me, and I could explain myself more calmly and clearly in my own father's house

As I walked softly across the hall for my over shoes (there had been a shower), Fred heard me and called out

"Do you know it's past midnight, Rachel?"

"Coming directly," said I, hurriedly.

So I could not get out of the house till he was asleep. I sat down to another reverie, but the current had been disturbed; two opposing ideas seemed to have found their way into my brain Either my marriage was sacred, or it was not According to some modern thinkers, Gail Hamilton for instance, a union without affection, or with affection only on one side, is nothing short of crime. With others, marriage, however loveless, is of God, and cannot be annulled. I had read with pleasure Gail's "New Atmosphere," never applying her pity for wretched wives to myself. Now her words returned with painful force. It was easy to guess what she would advise a poor victim to do in my case.

Was she right, or was it just possible that there might be a mistake in her reasoning, and God would not hold me guiltless for breaking my vows? What does the Bible say? Does it anywhere enjoin it upon a woman to leave her husband because his "heart is not with her?"

And stop what would become of Fred, who was evidently trying his best to forget his unfortunate attachment? Could be obtain a divorce upon sentimental grounds? There was Grace Preston—what snare might I not be setting for these two, who still loved one another?

My torture was greater than ever, for I was no longer clear as to the course I ought to pursue. I would inquire of the Lord.

I started quickly Some one approached with stealthy footsteps, it was Fred, looking haggard and miserable.

"I have not been to bed," said he "I had some accounts to look over. Why, Rachel, what has happened?"

"Fred," cried I, with a sudden impulse which scarcely seemed to be of my own will, "Fred, sit down here by me I pity you now I could not at first, for thinking of my own trouble"

"Pity me, Rachel? For what?"

"I know it all," said I "Grace Preston"

The poor man buried his face in his hands "The Lord have mercy on me! Who has told you that?"

"Angeline; and, my dear husband, believe me, I pity you."

"O Rachel, I—I supposed it was only a fancy I might forget, I thought my will was strong enough to master anything, I was angry with her, I believed she had ceased to love me, I, nor-der dreamed I was bringing harm to you! Rachel, my wife, can you, will you forgive me"

Strength was given me to answer "Yes," and that heartily

"It was wrong, Fred, very wrong No circumstances can excuse your deception, but, as I hope for pardon, I will not condemn you We will pray that out of the evil good may come I promised to be your faithful wife, I will keep my vow, Fred, I believe in you I have a consciences There is a battle before you—you will fight it like a man!"

The poor fellow caught both my hands and covered them with kisses "God bless you," said he, just as he had said before when I promised to be his

"Rachel, if only she would keep out of my sight!"

My brain reeled for very wrath at those words What woman, not quite an angel, ever had ruth for a rival?

"Weak girl," said I as mildly as I could speak the words "Despise her, Fred—despise her for her lack of self control! A high minded woman would crush such an unhallowed passion under her foot—crush it as my husband strives to do!"

'Oh, Rachel, you are very just to me—I have striven!'

"I believe it Fred The old witchery may be strong, but there is hope yet We will go away"

"What Rachel" Leave Dilworth' Impossible?"

'Not impossible, Fred It is a sacrifice but what do sacrifices signify when it is a question of right and wrong?'

I believed I had never loved my husband so well as at that moment, when he, a self reliant man, turned to me with helpless submission of a naughty child

"I have wronged you, Rachel, do with me as you will.'

'This is a tumble down house, any way,' said I trying to smile "Hark, hear the rats. There are a thousand sad associations here, both for you and Rachel Let us go to Oceola My Uncle John has a farm there for sale I know all about the place. There is less land than we have here, but it has been very highly cultivated The society of Oceola is better than this at Dilworth. Poor Angie, who despises upon excitement, will thank us for the change.

"But the outlay, Rachel' Consider"

"I do consider, Fred, and I remember that I have money at interest Let the world say what it may of the plan we shall approve our own motives You see I feel, there is really but one course to pursue'

Well, we talked all night my husband and I and the gray morning found us with a settled purpose What the struggle had cost me to judge of happy wives but I had earned the privilege of a good conscience The suffering I could bear now its bitterness over returned

We removed to Oceola, for no earthly reason the neighbors said 'but to please Eva's wife, who took a spasmodish notion against the old house A strong minded woman, with a will of her own'

We laughed a little at this for we thoroughly understood one another If love was wanting, we were at least cheerful friends

One thing gave us mutual pleasure the magical improvement in Angie In a few years she repaid our care by recovering her health and with it her good temper or, more truthfully, perhaps, her long discipline had softened the asperities of her nature At any rate she proved a precious blessing to her brother and myself

Our removal from Dilworth wrought an entire cure in Fred's case Indeed, I have doubted whether the same result might not have been accomplished if we had remained at home, for from the very night when we first opened our hearts to one another, I think my husband Fred has felt for me as he never felt before

In the course of events, Grace Preston followed us to Oceola to live with her sister, Mrs McClain She is still unmarried but I simply state, and expect to be believed, that I am a happy wife, and the feeling of jealousy is a stranger to my breast

I have no faith, my friends, in the theory that first love is by fatal necessity an undying passion Being, if you will have it so a strong minded woman, I am more than satisfied with the entire devotion of my husband, and willing to let the dead past bury its dead

Small Talk

[From the New York Gazette]

It is a very common thing to speak with contempt of "small talk," as it is called, especially of young men of education, who are just beginning to think of the more serious of life and philosophy, and who are anxious to converse in drawing rooms upon 'improving' subjects Now, small talk is a necessity of social life It holds as an important a place in the easy intercourse of society as oil does in the steam engine Grant that men and women are social beings, and that the various relations and pleasantries of society are necessary to our happiness, and the value of small talk cannot be denied. Two more philosophers may sit together for hours, and if the weighty thoughts of either condescend to use their tongues, their conversation, ten to one, will be "weary, stale and flat," if not indeed, unprofitable. Introduce a little small talk—jokes, quibs, anecdotes, nonsense—and thought moves more easy, conversation becomes recreation, even philosophy finds its own place, is actually graceful, and pleases as well as instructs What is a party or any social gathering without small talk? as is too frequently, perhaps, the case in society, but this is the only medium by which those who meet but seldom can become acquainted with each other and it is the surest way of calling out pleasant thoughts and pithy suggestions upon more serious and important subjects.

We suspect that, in most cases of professed contempt for small talk among ambitious young men there is a little mixture of the sour grape element They look the energy to overcome the natural tendency of the adolescent human male to relapse into silence at every opportunity suggested by the conclusion of a "subject" The position is an awkward one and as the only remedy, small talk, is out of the reach, contempt for it is a very natural result The female adolescent, fortunately for the comfort of both sexes, is generally gifted with small talk by nature, and often comes to the assistance of her embarrassed "correlative" in a very fascinating and peculiarly womanly way, by doing the talking herself, Here, as everywhere, the kindly and beneficent forethought of nature commands our unlimited admiration

But small talk has its degree like everything else. There is some talk so excessively minute that microscopic examination fails to disclose any sense. A frequent mistake of young men who are gifted with this very essential social convenience is the idea that ladies in society are not constituted to appreciate anything but small talk, and the smallest kind of talk at that

"My dear sir," said a lady friend of ours to a gentleman "you talk to us ladies as if we were fools, and you think we want you to do it I have just overheard you talking very sensibly with another gentleman, and you turn around to me and begin to talk nonsense." She was fully as frank, perhaps, as she was polite; but what she said was a very excellent hint.

Small talk, too, has its own proper times and places. The public lecture, for instance, is not a proper place; and during the most delicate air in an opera is hardly the proper time to indulge in it. But in its proper time and place it is pleasing and appropriate; and for our own part an hour of small talk with an intelligent woman is decidedly preferable to many forms of amusement

A Norwegian Scorpion.—The Government of Norway has just completed a monitor called the Scorpion, which is now on its way to Stockholm. It carries in a turret two Armstrong guns, which throw a 350 pound shot with 41 pounds of powder. The guns weigh 74,000 pounds. Notwithstanding this the machinery for working them is so excellent that they can be manœuvered by one man alone. The sides of the iron turret are eleven inches thick, and are lined inside with horse-hair matrasses The monitor is worked by engines of 150 horse power, and is manned by eighty men, twenty of whom attend to the engines and twenty man the guns. The cost of the monitor and her equipments has been £50,000
